The Tennessee Division Reunion/Convention in Greeneville is near. You will find all the information about this event in this issue of the Forrest's Escort. Please plan to attend this event and enjoy the sites of East Tennessee.

Points of interest:

- We need to move forward in the world of technology in how we communicate & recruit or be left behind.
- Stop the City of Memphis from renaming 3 historical parks. For more information visit www.citizenstosaveourparks.org. You may send your donations to Citizens to Save Our Parks or the Tennessee Division Heritage Fund. As of to date SCV National and the Tennessee Division together have already put $35,000 toward this fight.

Mike Beck

Tennessee Division Commander

Compatriots,

We have graphic historical novels. The first one, which if Forrest at Fort Donelson is SOLD OUT. We have copies of the other three which are Forrest at Murfreesboro, Forrest at Parkers Crossroads and Sam Davis. I will have boxes of each of these at reunion. They are a great fund raiser and educational tool.

Banquet speaker: Michael C. Hardy

Michael Hardy is one of the most sought after speakers on the War in the South today. He has studied military history for over thirty years, and brings a wealth of knowledge. He has penned nineteen books, and his articles have appeared in America's Civil War, Civil War Times, Gettysburg Magazine, and the Tar Heel Junior Historians. Michael and his family were featured on the cover of The Citizens Companion. Michael's works have won numerous awards, and in 2010, he was named the North Carolina Historian of the Year by the NC Society of Historians. In 2013, he became a Roads Scholar for the NC Humanities Council. Since 2014, Michael has served as historian for the North Carolina Division, Sons of Confederate Veterans. Michael lives in western North Carolina with his wife Elizabeth and their children, Nathaniel and Isabella.

Hotel: The General Morgan Inn <http://www.generalmorganinn.com/>

Room rates: $93.40 tax included (this is the lowest rate we have gotten from this hotel)

Room reservations: (423) 787-1000 must ask for Sons of Confederate Veterans to get discounted rate.

The Friday evening Social will be at the Dickson-Williams Mansion which adjoins the General Morgan Inn. The Mansion was known as the showplace of the South. Mrs. Catherine Williams was Southern in sentiment and had a son on each side. Her daughter-in-law Lucy was accused of betraying Morgan. In addition, the oldest son was a supplier of food and materials from the family farm to the Confederates. He also served as a guide (or Captain) to Morgan's staff while they were in Greeneville. General Longstreet visited here, and it is the home Gen. John Hunt Morgan spent his last night before being killed in the yard. We will have an assortment of light foods and visitors will be able to tour the mansion and visit the room, with its original furnishings, where Morgan slept.

Saturday morning business session: General Morgan Inn

Saturday lunch: Deli Platter Buffett

Following the Saturday morning business session, guests will be at their leisure to tour local historic locations all within easy walking distance or a short drive from the hotel.

In the downtown Greeneville area: Greeneville and Greene County has 6 Civil War Trail markers – the most in the state for one county. The state historian says Greene County could easily have over 30 markers. The CW trail markers represent: The Hangings of the Bridge Burners at the Depot, the Pottertown Bridge Burners, two markers are at the Dickson-Williams Mansion: A Divided Family, The Death of Gen. John Hunt Morgan, the Battle of Blue Springs and one at Tusculum College. We have the only Civil War BikeTrail in the state.

The Dickson-Williams Mansion 1815 The site of our Friday evening social is one of the best kept secrets in East Tennessee. This home is a true marvel of recovery and restoration. Come step back in time with us. Location: 108 N Irish St, Greeneville, TN 37743 (423) 787-7746

The Andrew Johnson National Historic Site. Johnson served as Lincoln's vice president and became the 17th President on Lincoln's assassination. The Visitors center has Johnson's tailor shop and many artifacts from the Johnson presidency. The Johnson Homestead is a good tour also. He is buried on nearby Monument Hill in the National Cemetery. Regardless of your thoughts toward Johnson, he did prove to be a friend of the former Confederates and they in turn re-elected him to the US Senate much to the displeasure of U.S. Grant. (Admission is free) The Visitor Center 101 N. College Street, Greeneville, TN; The Early Home 201 East Depot Street, Greeneville, TN; The Homestead 209 S. Main St., Greeneville, TN; The Cemetery 121 Monument Ave., Greeneville, TN. There is also Johnson's Birthplace Replica and a statue on the corners near the visitor's center.

The Nathanael Greene Museum is the local history museum and is filled with many treasures of Greeneville and Greene County. It has a gallery dedicated to Andrew Johnson and a Civil War gallery. The Morgan Camp placed the Confederate and US flags in this room as well as presented the painting of General Morgan and other artifacts. It also has a nice veteran's gallery. (Admission is free) 101 W McKee St, Greeneville, TN 37743 (423) 636-1558

City Garage Car Museum is near the Andrew Johnson Homestead and the Nathaniel Greene Museum. It is filled with rare and unusual cars. If you love cars and automotive nostalgia, then this is a must visit. City Garage Car Museum was founded in 2009 by Kent Bewley, a Greeneville native whose family has been in the automobile business since 1937. His father, R. R. Bewley, was a Pontiac-Cadillac-Packard dealer. A special section of the museum is devoted to Bewley Motor Co. with the original signs and dealer tags display. City Garage Car Museum has a very diverse collection of cars from a 1914 Ford Brass T Model to a 1972 DeTomaso Pantera Sports Car! Kent has always had a love of automobiles and shares his collection and collector vehicles of friends with the establishment of the museum. (There is a small entrance fee) 210 S Main St, Greeneville, TN 37743 (423) 638-6971

Downtown Greeneville has many shops and more within easy driving distance. On depot street is the old Train Depot where three of the Bridge Burners were hanged. A CW Trails marker is nearby. The courthouse has a GAR monument and nearby is the Confederate monument dedicated to John Hunt Morgan. It is one of a few courthouses with monuments honoring both sides. General Longstreet moved his command here from Russellville in the spring of 1864.

Tusculum College founded in 1794 has a nice museum of Andrew Johnson artifacts and a rare item, the tea service given to Jefferson Davis by the King of France. (This museum is open by appointment only on Saturday and if there is enough interest we will make the arrangements) The College is five miles from downtown. 67 Gilland St, Greeneville, TN 37745 (423) 636-7348

Doak House Museum at Tusculum College Its mission is collecting, interpreting, researching, preserving, and exhibiting the original Doak House, college related artifacts (since 1794), Doak family artifacts (1830-1860), and educational and religious artifacts and documents from Northeast Tennessee.

The museum uses its collections and resources to promote the study and research of history, education, religion, and cultural heritage of the people of Northeast Tennessee and the state. Location: 690 Erwin Hwy, Greeneville, TN 37745 (423) 636-8554

Davy Crockett Birthplace State Park. Located just 13 miles from downtown is the birthplace of the King of the Wild Frontier, remarkably one of America's greatest hero's. Many of Crockett's descendants would serve the Confederacy in the war. There is a museum, gift shop, and reproduction cabin. There is a Crockett monument surrounded by a memorial representing all 50 states. Location: 1245 Davy Crockett Park Rd, Limestone, TN 37681 (423) 257-2167

Bridge Burners Park: Located in Mosheim the Bridge Burners Park is dedicated to the men who would join the Union attempt to occupy East Tennessee. The US Army decided not to invade in the last hour leaving the bridge burners to their own accord, to be rounded up and executed after a drum-head trial. Two of the bridge-burners, a father and son, hanged by Confederate authorities are buried here. Located: 1270 Pottertown Road, Mosheim, TN 37809

Battle of Blue Springs: the largest and last major battle fought in East Tennessee. The site now has highway 11-E (Andrew Johnson Highway) running through it. Stopping at the CW Trails marker in the Food Country parking lot is to be in the thick of the action. The hills around the site contain many of the earth works still intact. Burnside moved from Knoxville with over 20,000 troops and were held in check by less than 2,000 Confederates under Gen. John Williams. Location: 6766 West Andrew Johnson Hwy. Mosheim, TN

The General Longstreet Museum: Longstreet abandoned the Siege of Knoxville on December 4, and retreated to rejoin General Robert E. Lee and the Army of Northern Virginia. The Federal army pursued, but not too closely. December 14, General Longstreet was at Rogersville, some 60 miles from Knoxville. The Federal army was at Bean Station. Longstreet turned his army around and they clashed at Bean Station. By nightfall, the Federals were retiring from Bean Station back toward Knoxville and the battle ended. The weather turned severe, record low temperatures and snow and the Confederate army was unable to travel and went into winter camp at Russellville. During the winter, the armies fought in the Battle of Mossy Creek (present Jefferson City), Dandridge and Fair Garden.

General Longstreet's 1863 winter headquarters was in the Nennery family home in Russellville, just outside Morristown, Tennessee. The home has been beautifully restored and features the only Civil War Communication Room in the state. It has a nice gift shop and research library. It is located 24 miles from Greeneville. Also the Historic Bethesda Church is 2 miles from the Longstreet Museum. 5915 E Andrew Johnson Hwy, Russellville, TN 37860 (423) 438-0968

Awards Dinner: The General Morgan Inn is renowned for its culinary excellence! Join us for a grand evening featuring the menu: Garden Green Salad, Chicken Picatta, Sliced Roast Beef in au jus, Whipped Potatoes with sour cream and chives, Corn Souffle', and Loaded Bread Pudding with Tennessee Whisky Sauce.

Wanted! Tennessee Division Adjutant in April 2016

Wanted! Tennessee Division Adjutant in April 2016

Martin Frost has been Tennessee Division Adjutant for many terms and has decided to retire from the post in April 2016. This gives us one year to find someone to fill his position. This is an enormous task! It would be good to have someone with an accounting background and to have them get some training before Martin leaves office. If you are interested in serving as the Tennessee Division Adjutant feel free to let Commander Mike Beck know.
